Game History: The game is set in June 1944, after the Allied landings on the island of Sicily at the beginning of July 1943. The Italian mainland had already been invaded. The game covers the first 12 weeks of the invasion of Sicily between July and September 1943. Sicily 1943 represents the last set of war in this campaign. From the early days of 1942, General Hans Eberbach had a vision of the establishment of an exclusively independent fortress state at the end of the war, based on the surrender of the Mediterranean together with Austria. Only with the defeat of the British army, the Americans were prepared to fulfill his plan. Thus, the dictator, Adolf Hitler, decided in December 1942 to order the invasion of the Italian mainland. Although the German strategists were certain that the Italian troops were only lightly armed and motivated poorly, they were unwilling to adopt a defensive posture and believed that such an invasion would be easy. They attempted a total surprise. In the early morning of April 29, 1943, some 10,000 airplanes crossed the Ligurian Sea to bomb the coastal batteries near Genoa, and soon a large number of German forces crossed the lines. The main divisions of the Italian
