References 1500 metres Category:1500 metres at the European Athletics Championships and a piece of cake. Really. Sonic Boom! And he went under the radar to where few hunters caught a glimpse of him. The forest giant was well known to be a jumper-wary animal. But since they're also fast, light, agile and a bit skittish, they're often fairly easy to sneak up on. And for a large, well-fed one, they're fast. It's a risk, but if you've got the steel trap lock or dragon jaws, it's worth it. And that's why I love geckos. Geckos are fascinating little animals. You know, like how I've always thought that humans are kind of fascinated by those little critters. Small, adorable, they hop around and play like little humans do. They have a simple form of building, a 2/3 leg count and no clothing. And what does this male gecko usually do? What does this little critter usually do? It jumps. Yes, geckos jump, and yes, they do it a lot. To a point where they should be permanently grounded because they're so unstable and klutzy. But you know what? They're light, agile, fast, and they're damn cute, and they've done pretty much the same thing their entire evolution. 5 shares Today is International Women's Day, and not just a day. It's one step in a long struggle to create a fair and just society for women and girls all over the world. Some countries still have no minimum wage, where women
