I've tried for instance: set keyworddisplayinput on. set keyworddisplayinput off. set extendedcharsetnames on. set extendedcharsetnames off. set enablehistory on. set enablehistory off. set crlf on. set crlf off. set history 0. set history size 0. set history cnt 1000. set history cnt size 1000. set nowritebackups on. set nowritebackups off. set nowritebackups file /storage/emulated/0/Download/Metanival.db. and I've tried in three different ways to be sure to disable it using VSCode (Ctrl+Shift+P and type in the prompt "settings": "workbench.editor.enableGlobalSearch") and using the "set editor.search.isEnabled": true code. Using file history I get more or less the same result: it works till the last line appears in the editor and that's all. As far as I know the.db file is never created. I've tried to restart the VSCode, the PC and the Mac, without any luck. Thanks in advance to anyone who can point me in the right direction :) A: I am unable to help with editing away the problem. As mentioned in my comment to the question, the issue appears to have disappeared as of a recent update on the Mac. A workaround, however, would be to create the sqlite database manually on your Mac and then use that in your application: Go into your.vscode folder (in your user folder) From there you will need to navigate to your application dir (under the user folder) From here you can find and open the following file: ~/Library/Application Support/code/vscode/sqlite In this folder you will see the sqlite.db and the sqlite.db~. Open the sqlite.db~, in this case you can find the Metanival.db Export to a file on your machine Create a new database using the file you 0cc13bf012

I would be grateful for the help you can offer me! @Matt Groh: I have no idea how to use rdesktop so I don't know what exactly to enter as the port number. @JasnoR: rdesktop-x11 The machine is running RHEL 5.2 and I am the only one that has access to it. A: The easiest way is to use rdesktop. It has a GUI and can even be configured with the IP Address or DNSname instead of a Port number. This is the command to connect to the VPN server: rdesktop -h -u -p Type in a higher port number than the default and enter rdesktop and then press enter. Hope this helps. A: I don't have much experience using rdesktop on VPN. That being said, if you try to connect as root, you may want to use the -R switch (root privileges) which is enabled by default. Secondly, I would try and connect to the VPN server using port 80 instead of 10000. This will make sure you are actually opening the correct port and will make the connection a lot more secure as anyone sniffing on a port different from what rdesktop is trying to connect to will not be able to see that you are attempting to connect to a non-standard port. RDP's default port is 10000. However, depending on the Windows version
