ZIP.A novel cobalt-based heterogeneous catalyst for hydrogenation of nitro compounds: opportunities to a sustainable and renewable fuel. A simple preparation of Co-based heterogeneous catalysts based on polymer-supported polymers is reported. The catalyst composition, the morphology, and the textural properties of the materials are affected by both the nature and the concentration of the polymer. A correlation is established between the catalyst structure leatornic structure onto the support. The catalytic performance is supprisingly improved upon a suitable choice of the support. The materials in the hydrogenatic hydrogenate the reactant, based on the adsorption of molecules with a special electronic structure onto the support.
