C-reactive protein, cell-free DNA and fibrinogen as predictors of in-hospital and 30-day mortality following major abdominal surgery in patients with chronic heart failure. We examined the prognostic value of perioperative inflammation/hemostatic markers in patients with chronic heart failure (CHF) following major abdominal surgery. This is a prospective cohort study of 139 patients who underwent major abdominal surgery. Risk for in-hospital and 30-day mortality was assessed with Cox regression models. Model discrimination was assessed with Harrell's C-statistic. The median age was 75 years; 70 patients were female. Atrial fibrillation was present in 65 patients. The median length of stay was 6 days. Ninety-two patients (65 %) developed postoperative complications. The median preoperative fibrinogen and C-reactive protein (CRP) levels were 312 mg/dl and 1.9 mg/dl, respectively. In univariate and multivariable analyses, postoperative increased fibrinogen (HR 1.9, 95 % CI 1.3-2.8, p = 0.001), CRP (HR 1.5, 6d1f23a050
